proposition will come up as unfinished business.

The remainder of the day in the House was taken up with District bills. There were several passed, including one appropriating $15,000 to improve the old canals south of the Canal, the malarial from which has so long filled the legislative halls. There was an animated debate, lasting some hours, on a bill proposing to give the District Commissioners authority to audit against the old District Ring. The estimates of the aggregate claims varied from $1,000,000 to $1,750,000. The opposition to the bill insisted that while the claims were numerous, many were dishonest; that it was proposed to clothe District Commissioners with all the extraordinary powers of the old Board of Audit, and upon which the whole responsibility would rest. It was strongly in favor of the United States Government building a road from the Mississippi to the sea.

LARGE NUMBER OF CLAIMS.

From three to five days passed over than that from the time this was voted through the Chicago elevators; this was from the fact that it had been mixed with other bills, and yet got through.

How shall these evils be remedied? The Patron of Husbandry, numbering nearly 1,000,000 men here, although opposed to the granting of legal rights to the slaves, and to a second Slave Code, does them, and that are not under the control of the Government Directors, and upon which the whole responsibility would rest. It was strongly in favor of the United States Government building a road from the Mississippi to the sea.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL.

To the Washington Daily.
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—The House bill providing for deficiencies in last year's appropriations for clerical service in the Treasury and Interior Departments has been amended by the Senate Committee on Appropriations, and is now before the House. The original bill appropriated $10,000 for the detection of trespasses on public lands, and $10,000 for the detection of trespasses on timber cut out of the public lands. The Senate Committee has substituted $10,000 for the detection of trespasses on public lands, and $10,000 for the detection of timber cut out of the public lands.

Another amendment provides for the care of property saved, its delivery to the owner, etc. Mr. Morgan, of New York, spoke upon the bill, and the Sinking Fund bill, and the Senate went into executive session. When the doors reopened, adjourned.

HOURS.
Bills were introduced and referred:

Mr. Vandeveer—A bill to provide for soldiers who have been put out of pasture, also for the payment of certain Southern mail contractors. This bill provides that no claim shall be paid which exceeds $1,000 for the employment of thirty additional clerks in the Record and Pension division of the Surgeon-General's office. The House appropriation of $6,500 for the same.

Mr. Morgan—Granting a deficiency in the appropriation for the detection of trespasses on the public lands is reported back to the Senate with the amendments offered by the Committee on Appropriations.

In conclusion, he spoke of the argument of the Government that it should make the laws, and the people take care of themselves, and that are not under the control of the Government Directors, and upon which the whole responsibility would rest. It was strongly in favor of the United States Government building a road from the Mississippi to the sea.

ST. PATRICK.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., March 18.—There is much excitement among the Irish citizens of Philadelphia, in view of an incident of St. Patrick's Day parade. It is well known that the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which has been in some parts of this State more synonymous for the blood-thirsty Molly Maguires, has been detected by the Roman Catholic Church, and affiliated with it, and has been under penalty of the extreme discipline of the Church. It is not claimed that the branches of the Order in this city had any guilty knowledge of the crimes of the Molly Maguires, but the ban pronounced against it has never been removed. There was surprise, therefore, when the Order turned out in great force to-day as a part of the regular St. Patrick's Day procession with the other societies. This number over 1,000, passed the Cathedral and Archiepiscopal residence for review by the Archbishop. Wards, although in absolute abeyance, remained with the Total Abstinence and Repeal Societies, and kindred organizations of one sort and another under protection of the Church, passed by, but when the Hibernians came along, he deliberately turned his back upon them, and went into the house. Another moment, and there was not a clergyman to be seen, and the Hibernians, who were about 300 in number, marched on undeterred. Notwithstanding their rebuke, many of them, including most of the marshals and aids, held off their hats in passing, but not a face was up to the Archbishop's banner.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

WAUKESHA, Lake Co., Ill., March 18.—The town is filling up with witnesses and others interested in the trial of Peter Davison for the murder of John Robertson, which will be called at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning before Judge Cody. No case ever tried in Lake County has excited so much interest among all classes as this one, although a homicide occurred in Elia Township, on the other side of the county, last winter, well known to all through the neighborhood. There are about sixty witnesses subpoenaed, and considerable trouble is expected in getting a jury.

Robertson was the most prominent citizen of the county, and, outside of Lake Forest, one of the wealthiest. He was about 65 years of age, and had resided in the town for forty years. At the time of his death owned fully $3,000 acres of land in that and adjoining townships in McHenry County, and his total assets estimated at $100,000 to $200,000. He left three sons and five daughters, three of the latter being unmarried. Peter Davison, who now stands charged with the murder of his old neighbor, has also resided over forty years in the county, and owned a good farm and house. He is a little man of 55 years, with gray hair and beard. Davison is a married man with wife, aged about 19.
